The museum will be open for banquet dinner guests from 19:00, and dinner will be served at 20:00.

The Kon-Tiki Museum contains the original vessels Kon-Tiki and Ra II. Other fascinating items from Thor Heyerdahl's world famous expeditions are also exhibited: from Fatu-Hiva and Easter Island, and the Tigris expedition. There is a separate area housing temporary exhibitions, a 30 m cave tour and an underwater exhibition including a life-size model of a whale shark. The museum has a souvenir shop. Thor Heyerdahl (1914-2002) is one of Norway's most famous sons: scientist, adventurer and champion of the environment. See: <http://www.kon-tiki.no/E-Heyerdahl.php>

Getting to the Kon-Tiki Museum by public transport

The Kon-Tiki Museum is situated at Bygdøyenes, just outside the centre of Oslo, and can be reached by bus or boat. Bus number 30 departs from the National Theatre and the Central Station at 10 minute intervals and the journey to Bygdøyenes takes approximately 25 minutes. The bus route from the National Theatre to the Kon-Tiki Museum

The ferry sails frequently from the quayside near the City Hall and takes only 15 minutes to reach Bygdøyenes, which is the second stop. The Kon-Tiki Museum is situated next to the museum where Fridtjof Nansen's ship Fram is exhibited.
